WILDLIFE

With 3 sides high fenced and the lush Rio Grande River bottom land to the south, this ranch is the perfect environment for whitetail deer, mountain lions, hogs, javelina, ducks, quail, dove, and turkeys. The owner has in place a year around feeding program to include six 2000 lb. protein feeders, multiple cottonseed and seven corn feeders as well as seasonal bird feeders. To convey also are 7 elevated hunting stands and numerous ground blinds for bird watchers and bow hunters. The MLDP III Program offers an extended whitetail deer season.

WATER

This ranch offers a rare amount of water features for south Texas. Near the headquarters is a 10± acre stocked lake with deck. For great migratory waterfowl, there are 2 other ponds. The Ranch conveys with 570± canal acre feet of water rights per year. Current reservoir and food plot usage is only 200-300± acre feet per year, leaving the balance for more usage or to sell. Water can be used for irrigation to the ponds and fields. There is a small amount of flood plain along the river.

TERRAIN-VEGETATION

The level terrain includes a well maintained road system. Roads have been improved and kept by the Texas Border Patrol with the agreement of accessing the ranch. Stands, feeders and water sources are easily accessible from the roadways. A major cool factor on the next door property is a Tethered Aerostat Radar System, or TARS, that is a huge blimp used by Customs and Border Protection to scan the skies for suspicious aircraft activity along the border. This is one of 3 that monitor the Texas border, the others being in Marfa and Rio Grande City.
